How did you do?

15 to 20 Yes’s:
You are very ready to meet that special person with whom to build your life. You may need a little more direction and information how to best connect with that special person and the right tools to solidify that relationship when you do meet that person. If you are already dating someone with potential, understanding the steps to engagement with support would benefit you at this time.

9 to 14 Yes’s:
You seem somewhat prepared if you did meet that special person. However, you may have met that person and missed him or her completely. You may be going out and meeting people, but you don’t know how to take it the next step and move into a more committed relationship. You would benefit from having a plan that will keep you focused and show you how to take the relationship to the next level when you do meet that special person.

0 to 8 Yes’s:
You have a lot to do to get yourself ready for when you do meet the right person! You should consider working with a professional relationship coach that can help you get clear about what you truly want for a relationship leading to marriage and clear up what’s getting in your way of meeting that person. You need to develop a clear dating plan and gain the necessary skills so you can find the right person and create a fulfilling relationship.
